Garveys Supervalu Tralee - Regional Super Valu of the Year

STAFF from Garvey's Super Valu in Tralee were celebrating this weekend after the Rock Street store scooped top prize in the regional Super Valu of the year competition. The award tops off an excellent year for the store, which also won the off-licence of the year award and hygiene awards in 2004. Last week management at the shop were told they had taken top spot in the southern regional section of the contest, beating off competition from hundreds of other Super Valu supermarkets. The award, presented by Super Valu head office, recognises excellent customer service and staff dedication.

To celebrate the win store manager Paul O'Connor and Garvey's Human Resources Officer, Caroline McEnery, treated their hard working staff to a night out in Tralee at the weekend.

The staff, who worked hard to help the store win the award, were brought to The Ballyroe Hotel on Saturday night for a special evening out.

They were treated to a meal and lively night of partying and dancing that lasted well into the small hours of Sunday morning.

Management even presented staff members with goody bags full of gifts to thank them for their efforts.

Human Resources Officer Caroline McEnery said Garvey's Super Valu wanted to thank the staff for all their hard work.

"It was a big achievement and it has topped off a great year for Garveys. We have won lots of awards this year including the off-licence of the year and hygiene awards.

"On Saturday we took the staff out to celebrate our success and to recognise their work," she said.

"The staff are super and in fairness to them the award is thanks to their hard work.

"If it wasn't for them it wouldn't have been possible for us to win," Caroline added.
